

He'd tell you forty stories.

None of them were about him.

“You’ve told me that story loads of times. Where were you standing when it happened? What were you thinking?”

Keep the story he loves. Make it his.

“What were you like at the age I am now?”

One he's been performing his way around for years.

“What’s a decision you made
make?”

The one nobody’s asked.

The questions that get past
the performance.
